Union Park will deliver the largest mixed-use development in Toronto’s history – contributing office space, community-serving retail, rental residential, public realm improvements, and a large park.

Union Park is proposed to be a 4.3 million square foot landmark development that will deliver approximately:

- Three acres of green space, in the heart of downtown Toronto, including a two-acre urban park built over the Union rail corridor connecting to the future Rail Deck Park;
- 3.3 million square feet of office space;
- Approximately 800 rental residential units, including family-oriented housing; and 200,000 square feet of high-quality retail.

This development will become the best expression of a mixed-use community in Toronto.
The Stack, located at 1133 Melville Street, will be the tallest office building in downtown Vancouver.

The 36-storey building will include 500,000+ sq. ft. of office and will feature a public park and adjacent public plaza.

The project is scheduled to be completed in 2022.
In the heart of Toronto’s Financial Core, 191 Bay Street will be a major expansion of Commerce Court, consisting of a new 64-storey 1.8 M sq. ft. office tower and a 70-ft. clear glass pavilion.

The project is under active entitlements, design, and prelease.
Located in Vancouver’s downtown core, The POST is a mixed-use development anchored by 1.1 M sq. ft. of office and a major F&B and retail-programmed podium.

The project is under construction and scheduled for completion in 2022/2023.
